

FOR-WARD PROGRESS: A new 60-bed ward has been proposed at Princess Alexandra Hospital

Junction 7A plans for M11 approved

A COUNTRY road is closer to being turned into a three-lane carriageway after county councillors backed controversial plans for a new M11 junction.

After public consultations and approval from Harlow Council, Junction 7A was passed by the cabinet of Essex County Council this week in spite of concerns from Old Harlow residents about noise and traffic.

Under proposals, which were first presented in May, a new sliproad and roundabout structure will be built north of Harlow's Junction 7, to ease congestion.

DECISION MAN: Essex County Council member Kevin Bentley

Gilden Way, currently classed as a B road, and Sheering Road would be adapted under plans, with road widening and new speed restrictions proposed.

Kevin Bentley, county council cabinet member for economic growth and infrastructure, said: "Getting Junction 7A is critical.

"We are still quite a way from it being finished. We are going through a design phase, we have to get it into the budgeting for the Government.

"We are pressing very hard for it to be done. It is a central part of our plans for West Essex and Harlow."

Opponents raised concerns about noise and increased Harlow congestion, with an estimated 71 per cent rise in traffic expected along Gilden Way and Sheering Road. Harlow and Essex county councillor

£150m cash boost would fund ward

Trust reveals plans for investment at Princess Alexandra Hospital

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsessexnews.co.uk

PRINCESS Alexandra Hospital could be set to receive a £150 million boost – despite predictions the regional NHS faces a £550m deficit.

According to the Sustainability and Transformation Plan (STP) for Hertfordshire and west Essex, published on Monday, the money would pay for a new ward block consisting of 60 beds.

Work would also involve the refurbishment of eight wards, the replacement of two operating theatres, and the refurbishment of the pharmacy.

The plan would also feature a multi-storey car park at the hospital, although the funding would likely come from a private partner.

Tom Cahill, chief executive of the Hertfordshire Partnership Foundation NHS Trust, was responsible for producing the STP.

He said: "There are obviously day-to-day problems with the quality of the services they provide and the chief executive is working on that.

"There's a long-term problem around the estate and there's an agreement in the STP to spend £150 million on that."

He also said discussions on building a new hospital in the area are ongoing but could not be funded in the STP, and would be subject to money becoming available and it representing value for money.

Comment

The Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust was unable to provide a comment on the STP's publication.

The document warns the whole region could face an estimated £550 million deficit by 2021 and lays out ways this can be avoided. These include plans to provide more care at home and use hospitals only for specialist and emergency care, but Mr Cahill said patients should not be concerned.

"The whole plan is about securing the care that people need," he said. "It may be in a different place or by different people but it's about securing care.

"Secondly, it's about making sure the care we provide is quality. Quality is at the heart of this plan."

Changes and savings in the plan account for £450 million of the deficit the area could face – but the social care system is being tasked with finding an extra £100 million.

Mr Cahill said redundancies are unlikely but he could not completely rule them out.

He said: "They are unlikely. I can't say there is no potential for redundancies when you have a plan like this. A lot of our challenge is with our spending on agency staff."

He added: "I don't want to kid anyone. This isn't an easy challenge."

GILSTON PARK: Developer says opponents are mistaken

'Some myth-busting must be done here'

CHANGE OF SCENERY: An artist's impression of the proposed Gilston Park estate from above

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

A PLAN to build 10,000 homes at Gilston is essential to meeting a severe housing shortage, according to the developer's director.

Mary Parsons, group director of housing association Places For People, responded to concerns raised by pressure group Stop Harlow North by addressing the necessity of housing.

She said: "We want to make sure people have got the right information available to them and there is a lot of myth-busting to be done. This is not Harlow North."

"We want to set the record straight that 10,000 homes are needed and there will be infrastructure in at the right time to support these homes."

"These homes are needed and most people we have asked have agreed that. This is about getting the right homes in at the right time."

"People have said that a bigger Harlow is not a better Harlow. But Harlow has to grow to be a better town."

Blessing

Gilston Park Estate has now been given the blessing of East Herts District Council and was included as part of their draft Local Plan.

Final consultations are now taking place before the plan is signed off next year.

For the past decade villagers have vocally opposed plans. The original proposals, called Harlow North, planned for more than 25,000 homes to be built in the area – but this scheme was abandoned.

Ms Parsons was keen to point out that since then plans have been significantly altered and that Gilston Park Estate and Harlow North are not the same thing. She continued: "It can appear to be a big shift in policy from East Herts [council] but I think [the public] has missed out a lot of the key steps in between."

"I would like to say creating whatever type of housing in whatever location is about giving opportunities to local people."

Regeneration

"It is also about supporting the regeneration of Harlow. With Public Health England there are going to be a lot of people coming in. The original plan for Harlow New Town was designed for expansion."

At a heated public meeting in Hunsdon Village Hall last Monday, Spike Hughes, leader of Stop Harlow North, said: "If we do not stand up and protect it now our children will be growing up in a concrete jungle."

Stop Harlow North leaders are asking villagers to oppose Gilston Park Estate by providing feedback to the council.

An independent inspector will examine the plans early next year and could approve, refuse or ask East Herts to amend parts before signing it off.

He will meet with councillors to discuss the plans and if he considers it important for Stop Harlow North to be present one member will have the opportunity to attend.

Leaders of the pressure group feel they would have more chance to convince the inspector their point needs to be heard if more people write in opposition.

HOMES NEEDED: Mary Parsons

INFRASTRUCTURE: Places For People responds to concerns

PLACES For People's director has responded to concerns that there is not enough infrastructure to support the Gilston Park Estate.

The 10,000-home development has been bitterly contested by residents of Gilston, Hunsdon, Much Hadham, Eastwick, High Wych and Wickford – which the planned estate would border.

At a meeting on Monday last week Spike Hughes, leader of pressure group Stop Harlow North, said:

"There are no plans for infrastructure for it all."

But Mary Parsons, group director of Places For People, the housing association in charge of drawing up the proposal, said there is infrastructure planned at the foundation of housing plans.

"We have been working on this for eight to ten years," she said. "We have listened to concerns that have been made and brought forward some robust solutions."

"East Herts has had to make some difficult decisions."

"It would make sense for any growth to be around existing infrastructure."

"These homes are needed. The essential infrastructure will go in there first."

At the meeting, Mr Hughes identified four key objections towards the estate.

These are: Water shortages, existing transport connections that may struggle to cope with a large population increase, not enough local hospital beds and building on green belt land.

Ms Parsons said the water shortage question was "valid," and a point the council has to address – but she added that a system would be established.

Regarding transport, she said: "It is about understanding the issues and what can be done about them."

"We are looking at the rail tracks and have been talking to people involved in Crossrail 2. [The road situation] is not going to change overnight but there will be a big investment."

On the subject of healthcare, Ms Parsons said that while the future of Harlow's main hospital was unclear, other services would be maximised.

"The NHS has asked to have a look at relocating Princess Alexandra Hospital," she said.

"We are not advocating that it would come to Gilston, but we will provide social infrastructure and GP places as well as the homes."

CINEWORLD LAUNCH NIGHT: Party at new six-screen multiplex

Lights, camera, action as town cinema opens at last

AFTER years of speculation a cinema is back in Harlow town centre in the form of the new Harvey Centre Cineworld.

The six-screen multiplex, located in the shopping mall's first floor development called The Terrace, was officially opened last Wednesday, December 7, with a launch party and film screening.

The cinema is now open to the public with films such as Fantastic Beasts And Where To Find Them, Moana and Sully on show.

Stuart Banham, general manager of Cineworld Harlow Harvey Centre, said tickets for Rogue One: A Star Wars Story were available and selling fast.

At the launch party he said: "It feels amazing to be opening tonight, we are so lucky to see it come to fruition."

"We start trading on Friday. It is really exciting as it has been a long time coming. We are ready for bookings now for Rogue One."

guests over a glass of champagne on the opening night before Edna Stevens, chairman of Harlow Council, cut a ceremonial film roll to mark the complex open.

Everyone present then enjoyed an advanced screening of Oscar-tipped musical La La Land in the largest auditorium.

The Damien Chazelle directed film, which stars Ryan Gosling and Emma Stone, will be released in cinemas nationally in January.

Customers can enjoy advanced screenings of some films in Harlow if they sign up for a Cineworld Unlimited Card, which costs £17.99 per month, and also allows punters to watch as many films as often as they like.

Mr Banham added: "We wanted to do something a bit special (for the opening night) and we managed to get La La Land quite ahead of schedule."

"The main thing for us tonight is getting people into the building, and we are really looking forward to that."

The Terrace will also welcome restaurants which are expected to move in next year.

IN BRIEF

Council lobby for education

RAY GOODING, Essex County Council cabinet member for education, has expressed "serious concerns," about the Government's school policy.

County Hall stands to see its education services grant drop from £10.6million a year to £3million from August as Tory policy seeks more secondary schools to become academies.

Mr Gooding wrote a letter to Education Secretary Justine Greening to explain he felt that improvements made to schools in Essex could be undone through the policy.

Christmas tree

MEMBERS of St Stephen's Church, Tawneys Road, Harlow, have erected a Christmas tree with a difference outside the building.

Plans for Junction 7A on M11 receive approval

■ Turn to page 2

Mike Danvers argued that a Harlow Bypass would be a better investment and criticised County Hall for diverting funds away from Junction 7 improvements.

Mr Danvers said: "I am very disappointed. Members of the public voiced strong opinions and they were ignored."

"Harlow will need a bypass in years to come, that is the best option. All the money (for Junction 7A) was taken from (that reserved for) Junction 7."

Mr Bentley said: "Having two junctions will be much better than having one. This does not stop the priority for Junction 7, we are lobbying the Government for that too."

"We asked the Government if we can swap money from Junction 7 to Junction 7A."

"We have to plan for the long term. It will get a much better flow of traffic now. Harlow Bypass is something we are continuing to think about."

"We are talking to Hertfordshire County Council about a bypass around Harlow. It is an ongoing conversation."

He added: "We have taken the consultation into account. Nothing (major) has changed but we might do some minor tinkering."

However, Mr Bentley, who has recently taken over as cabinet member from councillor Rodney Bass, said he was unable to say what any of the changes were.

He added: "I was keen for residents to have their say and they did that. People had lots of opportunity to share their concerns."

"We have done much consultation and that has been exhausted."

After the council's cabinet backed the plans they will be put forward to the full Essex County Council for final approval.

Social media campaign rescues 87 bus service

Residents hail route u-turn by firm as a victory for 'people power'

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

A BUS company has reprieved a route after a vociferous social media campaign from west Harlow residents.

EOS Buses announced last month that the 87 service from west Harlow to Epping would be withdrawn on December 17 as it was not profitable.

But following an influx of tweets from residents and members of Summers Residents' Association, the company has said the bus will continue, albeit with a reduced service.

Beverly Le Long, a representative of Summers Residents' Association, said: "It is a great testament to social media and people power."

Delighted

"We are delighted. Social media has given us the means [to campaign]. It is much easier than if you had to call people. It is one time when it has been a force for good."

She added: "We still have a real car culture in Essex generally and that is something the council has to tackle. We need to be getting people out of their cars."

"Obviously the bus needs to be profitable. My husband uses it every day to commute into London. It makes a big difference."

Chris Hunn, transport manager for EOS, said: "We had a lot of phone calls and tweets asking us to keep it going and a lot of people said they were not aware of it."

Keen

"We are keen to give it a go, but it is a business at the end of the day. We will reduce the number of buses from four to three. It will run every 30 minutes from 6am to 9am and then hourly during the day. It will then run every 30 minutes from 3pm until the last bus at 7.30pm."

He said the company will now complete a leaflet drop and advertising campaign to raise awareness of the bus.

EOS started the 87 on September 1. It passes through Summers, Staple Tye, Katherines, Jack's Hatch, Epping Green and Epping town.

The decision follows the announcement by TrustyBus that the 392 from Harlow to Hoddesdon and 505 from Harlow to Waltham Abbey will cease in January.

REPRIEVE: EOS has decided to reduce the 87 bus service from west Harlow to Epping rather than scrap it completely

GOOD LEADERSHIP: Chief Constable Stephen Kavanagh

Praise from watchdog for police

ESSEX Police's leadership has been rated as 'good' by HM Inspectorate of Constabulary in a report.

The document, published last Thursday, praised the force for strong leadership at all levels and also for seeking new opportunities for improvement.

Chief Constable Stephen Kavanagh said: "The report demonstrates that, in challenging times, Essex Police operates with a strong ethical culture that treats people fairly, puts victims first and equips officers to lead teams working every day to prevent harm and solve crime."

"The report highlights that we are working hard to improve the public's confidence in us and to ensure victims of crime are satisfied with the help we provide."

"We also attach great importance within the force to embed the fairness and ethical conduct that I know the public expect of us."

Showing Stow support with festive fair

RESIDENTS gathered in their hundreds to show their support for The Stow at a special Christmas market.

Businesses held the event as part of their Save The Stow campaign on Friday and Saturday.

People were invited to enjoy some early festivities including the Christmas light switch-on, a visit from Mr and Mrs Claus, carol singing and live music.

While enjoying some hot chocolate and mulled wine, there was also a chance to buy some early Christmas presents from resident businesses selling homemade gifts, treats and more.

Pupils of Stewards Academy were among those singing. Their teacher, Keely Thurley, said: "It was such a lovely experience."

"We were invited by Father Christmas to sing."

Performing

"For some of the students, it's their first time performing outdoors."

Kerry Hays, who runs her own business, The Little Cows Sweet Shop, said: "It's been going really well. I'm worried that I'll run out of stock! It's especially nice to see the community coming out together."

MULTI-COLOURED BUG: A Beetle of many colours at the 2016 Christmas market

The team from the unique garden ornaments company, JG Logs, added: "It's been superb to see so many people and it was just as busy last night too."

Traders have been concerned for the future of The Stow following the death of 40-year-old Polish man, Arkadiusz Jozwik, earlier in the year.

Busy

Shelley Wright, co-owner of Tiaras, said: "I would love to see The Stow as busy as this all the time."

"It has been going really well and we've had a massive response."

Organiser, Tina Richardson, added: "It has been brilliant and everyone has had a real positive vibe."

"Last night was fantastic, from fire-breathing to glitter cannons. We're all really pleased."

Ms Richardson contacted Harlow MP Robert Halfon earlier this year to lead their Save the Stow campaign and ask Harlow Council for support.

Mr Halfon, who attended both days of the Christmas market, said: "I'm so happy that this has happened."

"I'd like to say congratulations to all the shopkeepers, especially Tina."

"We need this every month as it shows that with some imagination, The Stow is a great place to both live and work."

PARENTS are facing an agonising choice this Christmas between buying presents for their children and providing enough food.

In the third week of Herts and Essex News and Media's Food For All appeal members of foodbanks have spoken about the difficulties that society's poorest face.

Mione Goldspink, chairman of trustees at Bishop's Stortford Foodbank, described the plight of many who struggle to put meals on the table in December due to financial pressures.

She said: "There is an increase in the need because people who are on low income and just about managing find it more difficult in the lead-up to Christmas."

"There is great financial strain. All parents want to give their children a lovely Christmas but if their income is very low they find it impossible to manage."

Struggling

"It is very sad. These parents are really struggling and there has been an increase of the number of people coming."

She added: "I do believe that society should help the less fortunate."

It is likely the figure will rise further this month as more families face a choice between buying presents and buying food.

Jeremy Pearce, coordinator of Broxbourne Foodbank, said: "We do see an increase, it is usually because of people choosing to buy seasonal gifts rather than looking after the basics."

"There is a need to be involved in Christmas and there is an expectation. You cannot, as a parent, tell a child that Christmas has been cancelled."

He added that Broxbourne Foodbank is in need of the most basic food items, including long life UHT milk and tins of fruit and Harlow Foodbank this week was helped with the donation of a new 600 litre fridge. Harlow Labour Party raised £600 in 72 hours after appealing for funds and many people came forward.

The fridge will be used to support Bounty Club which collects items from supermarkets, which would otherwise have gone to waste, and redistributes them in the community.

Duncan Craig, Harlow Foodbank's satellite manager, said: "We are chuffed to bits with the new fridge."

"I'm now able to take on greater quantities and varieties of chilled produce we collect through Bounty Club."

"This enables us to donate a truly wholesome and healthy diet to those in crisis."

"It's hard to describe the delight on our clients' faces when they are offered such a wonderful array of food items. I cannot tell you how much of an uplift this is to clients who are hard pressed."

Local authority bids for funds to combat rapidly-growing problem

HARLOW Council has asked the Government for extra funding to help combat homelessness.

In a cabinet meeting held on Thursday, December 8 councillor Mark Wilkinson, portfolio holder for housing, said: "Homelessness is an increasing problem and we are taking the issue very seriously. Harlow Council has applied for the Government to bring funds."

Serious

In an appeal run by the Star over the past few weeks, homelessness in Harlow has been found to be an increasingly serious problem, with the number of individuals in temporary accommodation steadily rising over the past two years.

Councillors praised the work carried out by the volunteers of charities helping to fight homelessness including Streets2Homes, which provide accommodation, food and clothing for the homeless, and Harlow Foodbank.

Speaking of the work put in by Harlow volunteers, councillor Joel Charles, said: "The volunteers are a credit to the whole of the town."

PROBLEM: Homelessness has been a growing problem in Harlow; inset, Mark Wilkinson says Harlow Council has applied for funding

Councillor Andrew Johnson, added: "It's amazing how the community sector are volunteering."

"We should pay credit to organisations and be thanking volunteers for their time and dedication." However, Cllr Johnson also stressed the importance of mental health and its impact on homelessness.

"Mental health is often the key reason for homelessness," he added.

"Many homeless people are known to the system but have a complicated history."

He added that more often than not, individual and personal stories cannot be revealed as many are too complex.

Portfolio holder for regeneration and enterprise, Cllr Tony Durcan, said: "Mental health is underfunded."

"Consequences of Government changes are putting people at a disadvantage."

PAWS FOR THOUGHT: Pets At Home is holding a Christmas appeal called Santa Paws

Collecting for animals in need. . .

ANIMAL charity Support Adoption For Pets will collect donations in the Pets At Home shop in Harlow.

As part of the chain's Santa Paws Christmas appeal, the store in East Road, Harlow, will welcome charity members until Christmas Eve.

Support Adoption For Pets helps rehoming centres and animal welfare organisations across the UK, awarding grants and running fundraising events.

Agonising

To launch the Santa Paws appeal, a charity photographer captured stills of cats and dogs in the agonising moments before being presented with food.

Amy Wilson, fundraising manager at Support Adoption For Pets, said: "We hope these pictures make people smile, they perfectly capture the joy that a simple bowl of food can bring to an animal spending Christmas in a rescue. Throughout the festive period, we tend to spoil those around us, and our pets are no exception."

■ BREXIT

Please clear up the facts for us

Your correspondent Steven Archer tells us that the referendum vote was not binding, but only advisory. "Brian in Harlow", on the other hand says the referendum result is legal and binding. The matter, surely, is not a one of opinion, but of fact.

Can't someone on the staff of the Star find out which it is, so that we don't waste time discussing it?

Frank Brown

■ Editor's note: The referendum result is not legally binding. All referenda in the UK are taken as advisory unless an act of parliament overrules this. The referendum act in this case did not do this.

Let's stop with the pettiness

In his letter in last week's Star Brian of Harlow states that the vote for us to leave the EU was the 'Largest vote for anything in UK's democratic history' and he's right.

However it should be noted that of the 16 million who voted for us to stay in the EU constituted the second largest vote for anything in our history. The final result was 51.9 per cent leave to 48.1 per cent remain.

I have no problem with the result and simply hope our elected representatives make a go of it.

All the post-Brexit bickering and petty point scoring is counterproductive.

Bob Johnson
Harlow

Not all remain voters are alike

In response to some of your letters over the past couple of weeks concerning Brexit, I'd just like to say that while I voted to remain and still don't think we should leave the EU, I am not one of the "Westminster elite".

The chance would be a fine thing indeed.

■ HOUSING

New employer is not enough

Mary Parsons mentions in your report that "it is not Harlow North". Of course we know that. It is a beautiful village necklace. However, let's take the lipstick off the pig. In dwelling numbers, it is a town that is nearly the size of Hertford (11,500) - in its first iteration at any rate.

In her other observation, she employs the classic technique of using a true fact to hide an untruth. Yes, we do need more houses (and why would everyone not agree with this obvious issue) but we do not need 25,000 (15,000 in the plan District PLUS another 10,000 for Harlow North, whoops sorry, the village utopias) to cover a 2,000 to 3,000 shortfall.

25,000 dwellings equates to about 60,000 people of which say, 30,000 need jobs but that's OK because as Mary points out, Public Health England (3,000 jobs?) are coming to town.

Continuing her flippancy with the truth, she talks about the original plan for Harlow being designated for expansion.

The reality is Sir Frederick Gibberd in his Master Plan for Harlow New Town, referred to the "Hertfordshire Hills" as an important backcloth to the urban area.

He did not mention building necklaces on his backcloth.

As for using his vision as justification - that really does take the biscuit.

It seems Places for People are quite at ease in the post-truth era.

■ POLITICS

Tories are not for the workers

The Conservative Party in the UK is many things: the party of wealth; historically the default setting of the English electorate; the party of institutions and establishment.

Many things but most certainly not, as Tory Propagandist Robert Halfon would have us believe - the party of the workers.

Mr Halfon knows his European history and knows that if one repeats a lie often enough people will start to believe it. However his Workers' Party hashtag is an insult to working people in Harlow. Robert is the former deputy chair of a party that legislates against Trade Unions - the true protector of workers' rights in any state, a party that has massively increased the use of dehumanising zero-hour contracts and a party that has forced the income of working people down as the income of CEOs has rocketed.

The Conservative Party has always represented the needs of the wealthy - whose wealth is based on the employment of workers at the lowest rate and cheapest conditions to maximise their profits. How can that philosophy meet the needs of working people seeking a fair salary and good working conditions? "Teflon Bob" knows that it can't, but he also knows that if he hashtags "Workers' Party" enough and uses his extensive funds to produce enough glossy posters and newspaper ads that the misguided may believe him.

■ GHOSTS

In defence of another theory

I am writing regarding John Wake's letter, featured in last week's issue.

John stated that The Law of Attraction is not a theory and should not ever be classified as one. This is his personal opinion. If I want the Law of Attraction to be a theory in my life, so it will be. Thoughts become things.

There is evidence of this, due to someone wishing they could acquire a specific object, be it a car or a job.

There is evidence that one's thought frequencies can cause molecular changes in water.

This law of like-attracts-like, is occurring all the time, yet we do not know the specific physics of it, making it a bit of a mystery.

We are now entering a time in history, where science meets spirituality.

There is no scientific evidence to this law - yet things happen anyway things that we manifested with our thoughts.

Anything that is intangible is regarded as spiritual.

Some things can not be explained. I agree with Mr Kelly in the article on December 1 "Mum finds a way to bust her ghost fears". Fear does attract more fear, so this lady was attracting more paranormal activity into her reality, by using her emotion of fear. Emotions are a powerful indicator as to where we are in our lives.

Our beliefs also manifest into our own, personal reality.

It seems to me, that this lady who had a haunting in her house, has now found her own power and is not scared of the supernatural occurrences that she was experiencing. Good luck to her.

Hospital was 'third world'

PRESSURED staff on Princess Alexandra Hospital's emergency department were helped by medics from East of England Ambulance Service on Monday.

A spokeswoman from the hospital in Hamstel Road, Harlow, said additional clinical and operational staff were needed for support. She said: "The emergency department was under increased pressure with high numbers of attendances, coming into the department both through the front door and via ambulance.

"Staff in the department work closely with their East of England Ambulance Service colleagues to maintain patient safety at all times.

"The team have a designated doctor and nurse assigned to the ambulance queue at all times.

"In times of peak demand, additional clinical and operational staff supports the department."

A female patient from Ware, who did not wish to be named, said that staff she spoke to were working shifts of up to 13 hours and had not had time to take a lunch break while temporary toilet facilities were erected.

The patient, who has now returned home, said: "It was just unbelievable. Several ambulances were parked outside as paramedics were in the emergency department.

"The doctors and staff were brilliant, but there was no space. Bins were overflowing, it was chocker block. Nurses had a 13 hour shift and had no time off for lunch.

"Some patients, in their 90s, were made to wait for ages in the cold corridors.

"It was a third world experience."

In response a PAH spokeswoman said all staff are encouraged to take a 30 minute break for every six hours on duty and that toilet facilities were available for those awaiting bed space.

Developer hails success of exhibition and begins feedback analysis

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A DEVELOPER has given shoppers a glimpse of the possible future in releasing images of their vision for Harlow town centre.

Addington Capital is looking to build 442 homes and create 3,100sq ft of retail space by reshaping the area between Broad Walk, Market Square and West Gate.

A two day public exhibition of the plans, which will go before Harlow Council for approval next year, attracted 551 residents, retailers and business owners.

Alex Wagstaff, partner and head of retail at Addington Capital, said the exhibition generated mostly positive feedback, however, concerns were raised about car parking.

There are no current plans to

ALL CHANGE: An artist's impression of a new town centre design increase car parking capacity in the town centre as residents will be encouraged to walk or use public transport.

Mr Wagstaff said: "We are looking to bring forward a high quality and sensitive development on the site, to help meet both local commercial and housing needs."

"We were extremely pleased with the number of attendees and level of engagement. We are also committed to working with residents and stakeholders to ensure that any redevelopment of the site is both sensitive to the history of the new town whilst also responding to local need."

Examining

"We have begun the process of examining all of the feedback and are reviewing the proposals. We look forward to further discussion with the local community over the next few weeks."

There is no current date as to when construction work could begin. Some details about how traders could be affected by business rates are still being ironed out with all plans subject to change.

All of the site is owned by the Harvey Centre, where a new Cineworld multiplex has opened this week.

SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME? How Harlow town centre could look

IN BRIEF

Warning about flu from birds

BIRDS at Pets' Corner in Harlow Town Park have been moved indoors over fears of avian flu.

An order was issued last week from the department of environment, foods and rural affairs (DEFRA) that all poultry and other captive birds must be kept inside for 30 days.

Public Health England advised the threat to humans remains very low but Harlow Council leaders are urging residents to keep their birds inside.

Present drop

ROUGH Creed Motorcycle Club will complete their annual Toy Ride on Saturday.

The group will assemble at The Square, Fourth Avenue, Harlow, at 10.30am and will collect presents from various locations.

Tribute to Tory stalwart: 'a real friend to many'

Former councillor has died aged 53

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

GUY Mitchinson, a former Harlow and Essex councillor, has died at the age of 53.

Town MP Robert Halfon has paid tribute to his friend who passed away on Friday after a period at Princess Alexandra Hospital.

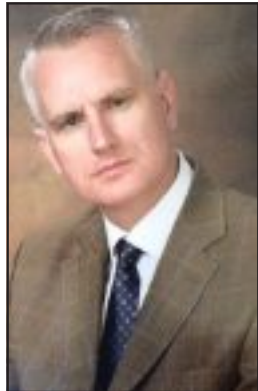

Mr Mitchinson, who lived in Joyners Field, Harlow, was a long serving Conservative Party activist.

Special

Mr Halfon said: "This man was very special because he loved his family, his town, his political party and his country. To those ends he dedicated much of his life."

"More than all these things, Guy Mitchinson was a real friend to many."

"I was one of those who were lucky enough to have his friendship."

PUBLIC SERVICE ETHOS: The late Guy Mitchinson

Mr Mitchinson worked as a border official at Stansted Airport and in recent years was a local magistrate. He is also well-known to Star readers as a prolific letter writer to the paper.

But he will be mostly remembered as a loyal member of the Conservative Party, for whom he represented on Harlow Council and later Essex County Council.

Mr Halfon continued: "When I arrived in Harlow in 1999 the Conservative Party was much smaller and he helped me from day one."

Election

"I was in his house every week leading up to the election and he was out with me leafleting. He forced me to go out."

"When Gordon Brown was thinking of holding an election (in October 2007) I went on holiday but he was angry with me for doing that as he thought I should have been campaigning."

"I liken him to a boxing coach. He was incredibly generous and loyal. He is one of the most incredible people I have met in my life."

BEST GIFT: Father Christmas with mum Marie Coppin, dad Joseph Headley and babies Skylah and Tarell

Santa flies in to children's ward

CHILDREN in Princess Alexandra Hospital's Dolphin Ward shared their seasonal wishes with Father Christmas over lunch.

Santa was visiting the Harlow hospital ward from his grotto in the Harvey Centre, whose management has donated £1,500 to buy Christmas gifts for the youngsters.

After the lunch the children attended an arts and crafts workshop on the ward where they were able to make their own decorations.

All items for the lunch were donated from Harvey Centre outlets Subway and Tesco while all gift items were bought from the shopping mall's stores. Speaking before the event

Bryan Young, centre manager at The Harvey Centre, said: "We are incredibly proud to be supporting The Dolphin Ward this year."

"These children are beyond brave and we really want to treat them to a really special day, which is why we are bringing a huge amount of activity to the ward."

Relocation of tool firm will create 20 jobs

ITS needed a bigger distribution centre

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

AT LEAST 20 jobs will be created when tools supplier ITS relocates its main distribution centre to Harlow.

The company will move from Loughton to the spacious former Comet site in Edinburgh Way and will open in the spring.

Director Paul Hubbard said: "We have outgrown the current building and we are feeling the pain of being somewhere not big enough."

"It is one of the largest units available in the South East and we wanted to retain as many staff as we could. It is a commutable distance [from Loughton] and a large percentage will stay on."

Warehouse

"We are looking for at least 20 staff in the warehouse, building on that in the coming months."

ITS is one of the UK's largest suppliers of professional tools and accessories. It has four retail outlets including one in Harlow, also off Edinburgh Way.

The company has signed a 15

BIGGER AND BETTER: The new location of ITS in Edinburgh Way year lease for the 152,000sq ft unit, which dwarfs the 45,000sq ft Loughton site.

Mr Hubbard added: "I have lived in Harlow for 12 years so it is quite exciting to bring a business to the town and create some more employment."

ITS is holding a recruitment day at the centre next Wednesday from 8am to 8pm to find staff who could fill the vacancies.

Available positions include pickers, packers, forklift drivers and goods-in operatives, with various shifts available.

No appointment is needed and potential employees are asked to bring a form of identification.

Book is returned to school library, just 120 years late

A SCHOOL library book has finally been returned more than a century after it was due.

The book from Hereford Cathedral School should have been taken back 120 years ago.

Arthur Boycot, who went to the school between 1886 and 1894, borrowed the book - The Microscope And Its Revelations - and went on to become a professor and a successful scientist.

His granddaughter, Alice Gillett, discovered the volume while sorting through some old books.

She returned it to the school with a note saying: "I am sorry to inform you that one of your former pupils appears to have stolen this."

However, the school decided not to charge her the late fee.

If the book had come from Hereford library, the fine would have been 17p for every day it was late and would have had a whopping total of £7,446.

Follow our guide below to find out how to put some festive cheer into dealing with your extra waste without any extra fuss this holiday season!

Recycling

Recycling as much as possible is a great way to save resources and reduce the amount of waste sent to landfill. Wrapping paper, Christmas cards and most types of packaging can be recycled.

Check our guide at the bottom of this page before putting items into your bin or box. Unfortunately, we will not be able to collect your recycling if it is contaminated with items that are not accepted. Extra recycling should be put out as normal in bags that are not black or purple alongside your full bin or box.

Food and leftovers

Christmas means extra people and extra food; for tips to help you make the most of the food you buy, visit www.lovefoodhatewaste.com

Only put food waste wrapped in newspaper in your bin, or use compostable liners showing this logo:

Extra food waste can be put in compostable liners on top of your caddy or in a cardboard box.

Recycle your real tree

Visit www.harlow.gov.uk/book and book a Christmas tree collection for just £2. If you have signed up for our fortnightly garden waste collection, there is no need to book, just put your tree out on your collection day. Please visit www.harlow.gov.uk/bins

Extra non-recycling over Christmas...

We will collect one extra bag of non-recycling per household on the first non-recycling collection after Christmas Day.

What to do with bins in extreme weather

During heavy snow and in icy conditions, recycling and waste collections can be disrupted.

You should continue to put out your bins until they are collected, unless advised otherwise by us.

For up-to-the-minute information visit www.harlow.gov.uk

Boogie Storm to dance at Cineworld

THE force will be in Harlow this weekend when Britain's Got Talent stormtrooper dancers Boogie Storm perform at a new cinema.

Cineworld has been trading for a week in the Harvey Centre and Star Wars fans are expected to book in great numbers for latest instalment Rogue One which opens today.

Boogie Storm will perform in The Terrace, on the centre's first floor, at noon and 1pm on Saturday with an opportunity for shoppers to meet the group in between.

The stormtrooper troupe reached the 2016 Britain's Got Talent final after impressing judge Simon Cowell – who used his golden buzzer to ensure they leapfrogged the semi-final stage. They eventually finished third.

Bryan Young, Harvey Centre manager, said: "We're really excited to be able to welcome this hugely iconic act to the centre to celebrate the opening of the new Cineworld cinema."

Go dry for good cause

RESIDENTS are being encouraged to go 31 days without booze for St Clare Hospice's JanuDry.

Throughout January fundraisers will donate money that would have been spent on alcohol to the Hastingwood-based charity, which provides specialist palliative care to those with terminal and life-limiting illnesses.

Firefighters attend crash

FIREFIGHTERS assisted at the scene of a road traffic collision involving two cars on the M25 at around 6.15pm on Monday.

Two crews from Harlow attended the scene between Junctions 27 and 28 on the southbound carriageway.

Crews worked with paramedics to release one male casualty who was trapped in his car. He was released by 7pm and left in the care of the ambulance service.

One crew from Brentwood and one from Loughton were also present.

Take time to remember

MEMBERS of St Stephen's Church, Tawneys Road, Harlow, have erected a Christmas tree with a difference.

Reverend Ernie Guest said anyone passing should stop by the tree and take a moment to remember loved ones.

Passers-by can also write the name of a late friend or family member on a tag and attach it.

Funeral director lays on limos for youngsters

A FUNERAL director treated children who have endured a tough 2016 to an afternoon out.

Onlookers cheered as Harlow's Daniel Robinson and Sons' chauffeurs picked up youngsters in the company's 12 limousines and drove them around town to Harlow Playhouse in a convoy.

They were greeted by Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow, and Edna Stevens, chairman of Harlow Council, and had lunch before watching pantomime Beauty And The Beast.

All the children have either suffered illness or family bereavement this year and Phil Barrow, manager of Daniel Robinson and Sons, based at Wych Elm, said the firm hold the venture to give kids a treat.

Laughter

Mr Barrow said: "It was a real feel good day with much noise and laughter."

"It was such a treat and very humbling to see the children enjoying themselves."

"We would like to thank everyone who came out to support us and all the families who helped make the day possible."

All of the 12 cars were decorated and the drivers dressed up as film characters for the occasion.

The limousines were flanked by fire engines and bikers, while Father Christmas started the procession at the Latton Bush Centre in Harlow.

Orchard Croft takes residential title in architectural design awards

Pearson Building is simply the best

By William Mata
william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

ORCHARD Croft and the Pearson Building have been named as the best-designed buildings in Harlow.

After a public vote and meeting of the judging panel in the autumn, the winners of the first Harlow Architectural Design Awards (Hada) have been announced.

After more than 500 public votes were cast Orchard Croft, numbers 3-12 and 161-165, will take the 'residential' title and the Pearson building, in Edinburgh Gate, will be named 'non-residential' winner.

Both will be officially crowned in a ceremony at Harlow Cricket Club on Tuesday, January 17, organised by Harlow Civic Society. Stan Newens, society chairman, will present trophies on an evening which will double up as their annual general meeting.

On Orchard Croft, which was designed by Sir Frederick Gibberd, a Hada spokesman said: "It was well supported in the voting and narrowly won the judges' decision over Rose Crescent."

Completed

"Completed in 1964 using a few, well-chosen materials, Old Orchard has a strong, well-proportioned angular style that is practical and visually appealing in its setting."

The residential shortlist also included buildings at Old Orchard, The Chase, Vince Dunn Mews and Pennymead.

On the Pearson building,

GRAND DESIGN: Orchard Croft has won the residential title designed by Conran Roche, the spokesman added: "The judges felt this is the standout building in Harlow, and just ahead of Passmores Academy."

"Combining simple sculptural shapes with excellent detailing, this building has exceptional quality and, with landscaping at both ground and roof levels, is a landmark on Edinburgh Way."

The non-residential shortlist also featured Harlow College Building C, the Owens-Illinois building, Harlow Playhouse and Thomas Moore Roman Catholic Church. The Hadas are sponsored by Places For People.

WINNER: The Pearson building has taken the non-residential title

NEW VILLAIN:
Ben Mendelsohn
as Orson Krennic

Dazzling prequel brings new hope

Rogue One: A Star Wars Story

SCI-FI (12A) 134 mins
Director: Gareth Edwards
Starring: Felicity Jones, Diego Luna, Ben Mendelsohn, Donnie Yu, Mads Mikkelsen, Alan Tudyk, Jiang Wen, Forest Whitaker, Riz Ahmed and the voice of James Earl Jones

OPENING with the familiar, luminous blue legend – “A long time ago in a galaxy far, far away...” – but not the scene-setting title crawl reserved for official episodes of the Star Wars saga, Rogue One is a rollicking, action-packed romp that dovetails neatly into the sprawling, otherworldly opus writ large by George Lucas.

The visionary filmmaker came close to self-extinguishing his elegant handiwork with the abomination of Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace.

Thankfully, this prequel under the assured captaincy of director Gareth Edwards, which unfolds shortly before Episode IV – A New Hope, learns from mistakes of the past and isn't a mindless slave to technological wizardry.

Certainly, there are dazzling visual effects and breathtaking battle sequences, including cute nods to previous films in the series that will have fan boys and girls whooping with unrestrained glee.

Scriptwriters Chris Weitz and Tony Gilroy preach to the converted with lovingly recycled lines of dialogue – “I’ve got a bad feeling about this” – and even repurposed old footage.

However, the Force isn't perpetually strong with Rogue One.

A disappointingly linear plot occasionally clunks and grinds like an AT-AT combat walker with a rusty knee joint and characters' heartfelt diatribes about the corruptibility of morals in the white hot crucible of war only land glancing blows.

The Galactic Empire begins construction of a new superweapon under the command of research director Orson Krennic (Ben Mendelsohn).

If this behemoth, powered by the same Khyber crystals as light sabres, becomes fully operational, the Imperial Military will crush all resistance.

From the Rebel Alliance headquarters on Yavin 4, Mon Mothma (Genevieve O'Reilly) and other council members hastily prepare a response.

They despatch Captain Cassian Andor (Diego Luna) and a reprogrammed enforcer droid, K-2SO (Alan Tudyk), to rescue Jyn Erso (Felicity Jones) from an Imperial labour camp on Wobani, knowing she can lead them to her estranged father, Galen (Mads Mikkelsen), one of the architects of the Death Star.

Together, Jyn and Cassian must steal the design schematics to the superweapon from a heavily fortified complex on Scarif, aided by blind assassin Chirrut Imwe (Donnie Yen), his gun-toting protector Baze Malbus (Jiang Wen) and Imperial pilot defector Bodhi Rook (Riz Ahmed).

Meanwhile, Orson prepares a test of his ‘planet killer’ to impress the Emperor and Darth Vader (voiced by James Earl Jones).

Rogue One: A Star Wars Story is a bombastic and frequently bruising rumble in the space jungle that lays bare the harsh realities of conflict for the emotionally scarred warriors on the ground.

Jones is a plucky heroine, issuing the film's central battle cry built on the unswerving belief that “rebellions are built on hope”, and Luna is a solid foil in every respect.

Tudyk provides the droll comic relief as the robotic sidekick, who is hard-wired to say whatever ‘comes into his circuits’.

Director Edwards conjures some magnificent action sequences that look spectacular in 3D, and Michael Giacchino's score nods affectionately to the stirring themes of John Williams from many moons ago.

Unlike Lucas' hellish prequels, this is a step back in time that signals a bright future.

RATING: ■■■■ Good

Rebel with a cause

IMPETUOUS:
Felicity Jones
as Jyn Erso in Rogue One

Her career's going from strength to strength, and Felicity Jones' latest role as a rebel leader in Rogue One: A Star Wars Story is set to catapult her deep into A-list territory. The British actress tells Gemma Dunn why the franchise's latest offering is something to celebrate Felicity Jones may be fast-becoming hot property in Hollywood, but when it comes to mapping out her next move, the British actress insists there's never a set plan.

Refusing to take herself too seriously, the 33-year-old is in great spirits and reveals in no uncertain terms that she prefers to simply ‘fly by the seat of your pants’.

And her breezy attitude – coupled with formidable talent – seems to be working wonders.

Since landing an Oscar nomination for her role in 2014 Stephen Hawking biopic The Theory of Everything, Oxford-educated Jones has justly shot to the top of nearly every film-maker's most-wanted list.

This year, she's already teamed up with Tom Hanks and director Ron Howard for Inferno, the third adaptation of Dan Brown's novels, and will play Sigourney Weaver's terminally ill daughter in J. A. Bayona's heart-wrenching A Monster Calls, out in the New Year.

Now, as 2016 draws to a close, she's also starring in Rogue One: A Star Wars Story – the first in a new series of Star Wars stand-alone films that, despite sitting in a universe fans know and love, features new characters and storylines.

Reportedly set somewhere between the aftermath of 2005's Star Wars: Episode III – Revenge Of The Sith and events in the original Star Wars film, Jones plays Jyn Erso, the impetuous leader of a group of unlikely heroes, who band together on a mission to steal the plans to the Death Star, the Empire's ultimate weapon of destruction.

“I feel like Star Wars crosses continents,” notes the Birmingham-born actress, who jokes she'll be pleased to finally remove the ‘invisible gag’ once the epic is released.

“It's something people love, whether they're particularly into science-fiction or not, and I really feel the heart of these films are always rooted in relationships. That's why we keep coming back to them. You're so fond of the characters, and you want them to succeed against the forces of evil.”

And while her hands might be tied as far as plot-spoilers are concerned, she's happy to tease hardened fans by likening it to the 1980 classic The Empire Strikes Back – in that there's a quest at the centre of it.

“It's very much rooted in a parent-child relationship and father-daughter relationship, which is the thrust of the story,” observes Jones, whose father worked as a journalist and her mother in advertising. “But it also has moments of lightness and fun and humour.”

“K-2, who is played by Alan Tudyk, was constantly improvising when we were on set and is very funny in the film,” she continues, “so it has a bit of everything.”

In the case of depicting newbie Erso, English rose Jones states she wanted her to be as human as possible.

“She's strong when she needs to be, she's incredibly determined and she has to be tough when she doesn't feel it. But at the same time, there is enormous vulnerability,” she says.

The actress – who started her professional career at age 11 in children's TV series The Worst Witch – was also sold on the ‘rare opportunity’ to play a female who is not thinking about romantic relationships.

Embracing the desexualisation, the self-confessed feminist recently told Glamour magazine: “We don't even see Jyn's arms! That's not her priority. She's a survivor, and she has a mission to complete.”

“Gareth [Edwards, director] said very early on, ‘I want guys to watch it and be like, ‘I want to be Jyn!’ A female friend of mine said, ‘I love that Jyn looks how we look, with trousers and a long-sleeved top’. We aren't in hot pants. When do women walk around wearing hot pants?”

Wise beyond her years, Jones, who has in the past spoken out on the Hollywood gender pay-gap, is also keen to play down comparisons to Star Wars' Daisy Ridley.

Talking of Erso in contrast to Ridley's defiant Rey, who debuted in 2015's Star Wars: The Force Awakens, she says: “Jyn's had a bit of a struggle in life, she's more of a hardened character, she knows who she is and where she's come from, she's quite streetwise.”

“She's very sure she doesn't like the Empire; she's going to bring them down.”

But that's not to say she wasn't happy to share a defining moment with her fellow Brit actors.

“It was quite nice, actually... Throughout filming, we met John [Boyega, who plays Finn in Star Wars: The Force Awakens, alongside Ridley] and then I met Daisy,” she recalls, smiling sweetly.

“It was more [about] looking at each other and going, ‘Wow, this is pretty cool, we're all in Star Wars!’, you know, celebrating it together.”

And is she prepared for the marked prospect of intensified stardom being in Star Wars brings with it?

“There's so much hard work that goes into making these films, you can't suddenly go, ‘Oh, it's so awful, people want to see the films’,” Jones reasons with sincerity.

“It's a privilege, and it's a pleasure to share with people.”

In June 1930 the magician Hugo Cedar stood on London Bridge with a card on his hand. Crowds watched as the card slightly rose, apparently of its own accord, and then hung in the air as Cedar, who had been right before them moments earlier, vanished. He was never seen again.

This legend has been interpreted by many over the years. Some believe a trap door was involved while others speculate that he transformed into the card.

Whatever happened, the stunt is the greatest magic trick in history, according to performer David Aula, who has co-created a show to honour its legacy. That show, The Vanishing Man is coming to Harlow Playhouse on Saturday, February 11.

David, who is co-directing and co-starring alongside friend Simon Evans, said: "We have been fascinated by the story of Hugo Cedar. The play is our exploration of what he did, what that magic trick was and how he did it. Throughout we use tricks to explain different forms of magic.

"It is not a magic show, but it looks at magic and how people believe magic. It is not like anything the audience will have seen before, unless they have seen the show before."

Researching Cedar for the show has been difficult with little material to source and myth interfering with the truth.

David continued: "Cedar has been a hero and a villain for us. When you are performing magic, generally, after a while you can see a performer and work out how the trick is done. It is a pride thing.

"But with Cedar no one has come up with an explanation. A legend has grown up about what has happened. There is a cult following around the world. Some people believe he developed immortality, some think it was a miracle and some think he transformed his being into the card.

"There have been copycat incidents of people jumping off the bridge. It does not happen a lot, but people are crazed by it."

David said the play is difficult to describe, but at times they play the role of Cedar in a dramatised account of his life – and also address the audience as a narrator. Cedar himself has a link to Harlow, but David said he will only disclose the link in the performance.

The London-based pair are on the road from January, with the date in Harlow towards the middle of a long tour. It will be performed in the Playhouse as part of Pay What You Can – where audiences can make a donation at the end.

David added: "We are old friends and we have been talking about this since we were kids. Our friendship centred on magic and it went from there."

Spanning the musical genres at the Square

IT IS not often you will see a jazz band, folk singer and alternative rock duo on the same bill but then again The Square has never been a conventional venue.

Concert promoters The Hit Cave are taking over the concert hall in Fourth Avenue, Harlow, tomorrow with a quirky line-up.

Their latest gig will showcase the talents of: THUMB, Ella Brand and Scrounge. Ronan Van Kehoe, from The Hit Cave, is looking forward to the gig.

Introducing THUMB, a six-piece jazz/neo-soul/funk band based in London, Ronan said: "We're trying something new here booking a jazz band to play at The Hit Cave.

"You don't often see jazz at The Square in general. These guys are really, really good, and we urge people, whether they're jazz heads or not, to be open minded and to come along and check this out. It's gonna be fun."

He added: "One member, Michael Leopold Weber, is from Harlow and attended Harlow College to study music."

Alternative folk singer/songwriter Ella Brand is also Harlow born and raised.

Ella has recently been working with members of indie band Don't Worry on her debut EP which will be released next year.

Ronan said: "This performance will be with a four-piece band and will present Ella's songs in a more powerful way than ever before. We absolutely love Ella's music and we think you will too."

The show will be opened by Scrounge, a two-piece alternative rock band who are based in London. Members Lucy and Luke are well known for their song writing nous and energetic performances, having impressed in previous shows.

Doors open from 8pm and entry is £6 on the door. Anyone aged under 16 must be accompanied by a responsible adult, aged over 18.

PANTOS

Three cheers for perfect pantos

We sent our editor off to review this year's batch of pantomimes. Oh yes we did. . .

SNOW WHITE, HARLOW

THE warmth of The Victoria Hall Theatre's Snow White was such that it felt as though one had been invited to spend Christmas with a fun family.

A large cast of youngsters joined established stars of the venue in Bury Road, Harlow, for a lively first night of a show which will run on selected nights until December 23.

With a familiar plot, songs and dancing Snow White contained all the ingredients for a festive feast without the sing-a-longs and 'it's behind yous' of a pantomime.

Martin Colton was again on directing duty, and with writer Simon Mawdsley, the pair created a flowing narrative that nicely rotated the characters, to seamlessly ensure equal stage time.

Becky Byrne is well cast as the vainly villainous Queen, who starts the proceedings by spreading word of her beauty from her throne – which remained omnipresent on stage.

Molly Jenkins is a strong lead as Snow White, accompanied by Tom Williams' Prince, as they are helped by (a rotating child cast of) dwarves and Snow's guardian Mrs Gumble (Alyssa Upton) to evade capture by the Queen's gormless guards and eventually mount a revolution.

Despite a few first night hiccups, the cast deliver and it is an entertaining watch – albeit perhaps in need of a few more gaes aimed in the direction of parents.

Snow White is now fully booked on all of its dates.

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD, HERTFORD

GOING to the panto at Christmas is a tradition as old as time. And I have started my own tradition by going to the Hertford Theatre panto during one of the school performances. I think it started as someone's idea of a joke – stick the editor of the local paper in an auditorium full of over-excited youngsters and see if they survive.

But I enjoyed the uninhibited joy of the kids so much, I have made sure I repeat the experience each year.

And the children didn't let me down this time around for the production of Little Red Riding Hood.

They threw themselves into cheering the goodies and jeering at the baddies, at times scarcely able to stay in their seats.

If I was on the stage I could think of nothing better than hearing and feeling the swell of support from the young audience.

And the audience had a panto to remember. Another in-house production proved that you do not need to have a big star taking the lead role to have a success on your hands.

The chemistry between Little Red (Philippa Rose) and Simon (Alex James Ellison) made their friendship genuine and gave the production real warmth.

And on the subject of warmth, hats off to Robert Oliver (B B Wolf) who must have been sweating buckets under the lights in his wolf costume. Regulars to Hertford Theatre pantos may remember Robert as Hansel from last year, but this time round he appeared to have grown in confidence – as well as growing body hair.

The three little pigs gave an added dimension to the familiar fairytale as well as a good deal of humour.

The cleverly crafted script, written by Rhys Thomas, who is also the director, ensured there is plenty to entertain the older members of the audience as well as lots of opportunity for audience participation from the younger ones.

There was also participation for one of the teachers too. Take a bow Mrs Heath-Clarke, from St Joseph's in the Park. I am sure your pupils would have been very impressed with your moves!

Even for a self-confessed Bah Humbug, the Hertford Theatre panto is a must. A magical show filled with colour, great songs and a real feel good factor.

It would not be Christmas without it.

CINDERELLA, BISHOP'S STORTFORD

FLYING toilet rolls...I never saw that coming. And oddly enough, neither did the family in row four!

But with the Andrex – other brands are available – safely returned to the stage, this year's Rhodes panto continued.

I'd need to watch the show again to find out if it was a deliberate 'accident' as Buttons (Joseph Vaiana), Dandini (Drew Gregg) and the King (Kevin Lacy) performed their alternative version of The Twelve Days Of Christmas.

But that would be no hardship, in fact it would be a delight to sit through this fantastic production of Cinderella again.

It was my first time at Rhodes and I wasn't too sure what to expect, but it was a brilliant show with the right amount of adult humour to keep the mums and dads happy as their excited offspring screamed and shouted at the stage.

If you saw last year's record-breaking Jack And The Beanstalk, you'll have a fair idea about the high standard of the show as it has been created by the same team at Phoenix Theatre Arts headed up by Phil Dale.

Not only did he write the show as well as being producer and co-director, but he also finds time to put in a wicked performance as Cinderella's stepmother.

Many of the cast are locals, including Kate Coysten (The Fairy Godmother) from Sawbridgeworth, and George Jack (one of the ugly sisters) who is doing his A levels at Herts and Essex High School.

And that theme is maintained through the show with a number of local references – including the hoodies of Parndon Wood, taking the place of the traditional ghosts.

The show is non-stop, in fact, wherever Vaiana is getting his energy from, I'd like him to bottle it for me.

He also educated me in the lean and dab, a dance move with its origins in the Atlanta hip-hop scene.

The interpretation of the all-time favourite fairytale was quite removed from the Walt Disney version with Cinderella (Georgia Collins) being whisked to the ball in a white sports car, and a king with a penchant for dance music, accompanied by a great lighting display.

And those ugly sisters, Marg(arine) (Dan Boulton) and Flora (Jack), were a delight.

Clever scenery gave the perfect stage to the cute white mice who popped out seemingly from everywhere, showing what a well thought-out production this is.

My only concern was when Gregg made his final walkdown wielding a cricket bat. Given his earlier clumsiness with the toilet roll, I hope row four were ready to take cover.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS, ST ALBANS

ALBAN Arena has knocked it out of the park with their 2016 panto.

Great characters, perfect comedy timing, a brilliant cast – Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs has it all in spades.

I have seen a fair few pantos in my time – three in the past week alone – and I have loved and laughed through them all.

But this year, the Alban Arena has moved it up a notch to produce a spectacular show that simply never stops.

The laughter is continuous. You've barely had chance to react to one one-liner before the next one comes along, and the next.

It is relentless and so much fun.

The panto has a stellar cast this year. Back for a sixth time is Bob Golding (Nurse Nellie), and let's be clear about this, it wouldn't be the St Albans panto with him.

I'm sure he got the biggest cheer of the evening when he made his first appearance.

And he is teamed up once again with Ian Kirkby (Herman the Henchman). The two work together magnificently and their timing is impeccable.

Topping the bill this year is Rita Simons (Queen Morgiana), best known for her role as Roxy Mitchell from EastEnders.

If, like me, you have never seen Rita in any other role, you are in for a real treat.

This sexy rock chick can belt out a tune and has also honed her skills at comedy acting. She may be a loss to EastEnders as she bows out in what has been described as an 'explosive storyline', but she is going to be a gift to her next role in the stage version of Legally Blonde.

Don't expect the twee Walt Disney approach to the story – even the fantastic dwarfs have different names – but prepare yourself to laugh until your sides ache.

It's fair to say pantos have changed a bit over the years and this was the first time I had seen the audience handed 3D glasses.

I missed out on picking mine up but was able to watch the front rows squeal and duck as the 3D animations came to life.

Just one more added dimension to what is a great show.

Producer Emily Wood and writer/producer Paul Hendy should be incredibly proud of what they have achieved this year. In fact, I am happy to go on record to say this is the best panto I have ever seen.

I'm already looking forward to next year's Aladdin.

Barbara returns to her folk roots

The Queen of Scottish folk music is looking forward to exploring her roots on a new tour. Barbara Dickson will perform at Harlow Playhouse on Thursday, February 9 to promote a new five-song EP called Five Songs – if you see what she did there.

“I go on tour every couple of years,” said the Dunfermline 69-year-old. “I start the tour on Wednesday, February 1 by which time a record will have been released.

“It will have some material that people might have expected from me 30 years back. There is a lot of folk-based material.”

Barbara is best known for 1970s and 1980s hits including Answer Me and I Know Him So Well but is also an Olivier Award winning actress, having appeared in Blood Brothers and Spend, Spend, Spend on stage.

Having rose to fame during the 1960s Scottish folk revival, Barbara has gone on to release more than 25 albums and this latest venture sees her in a reflective mood.

Five Songs contains a mixture of covers and new compositions, including The Hill which Barbara wrote herself.

She said: “I do not enjoy playing songs from my back catalogue any more than I enjoy playing my new stuff.

“The Caravan Song is the one that I have to sing. It is quite anthemic. People just love it, there is something about it that just talks to people. The EP Five Songs will be coming out for the tour. At the moment I am approving the art work.”

Barbara said she ‘goes back a long way’, with her support band of four and that they ‘really love coming together’.

Her performance in Harlow will be at the beginning of a 24-date tour which starts in Birmingham and ends in Liverpool with most corners of the UK covered in between. And the Playhouse is not a new venue to her.

“The towns near London, but not in London, are lovely as they have their own audience,” she said.

“Once we get going on tour we are able to stick to the same regime every day. I rest in the afternoon before going to the show. I try and minimise how tiring it can become.”

Tickets cost £32 and are on sale now.

Country life that Corbyn left behind

The large army of Corbynistas who have helped the Labour leader stay in post despite this year's vote of no confidence now have the ultimate Christmas present to give themselves, should they have £650,000 spare.

The childhood home of their idol is currently for sale with agent Savills, although on closer inspection it's not where you might expect a hard-left politician to hail from.

Yew Tree Manor is a seven bedroom detached house in a rural setting within the Shropshire village of Newport and is where Corbyn grew up with his three brothers.

His electrical engineer father and scientist mother bought the 17th century property in 1956 after Jeremy's father David stayed at the house, which used to be a hotel, while working in the area. He then bought it.

Jeremy attended the local grammar school with his brothers and later moved to London to start a degree at North London Polytechnic. He became a councillor for a London borough, then a secretary of a local Labour party before entering parliament in 1974 and becoming leader of the party in 2015.

But while many regard Corbyn as a cardigan-wearing London intellectual, his brother once said his years spent at rural Yew Tree Manor made him much more a 'bumpkin' than many of his Labour colleagues would realise.

The property includes four reception rooms, five bedrooms, a separate garage and just over an acre of grounds.

HOT GOSSIP

Kitchen's a bit small for Blumenthal

COULD this be the house where three-Michelin starred chef Heston Blumenthal invented snail porridge, triple cooked chips and bacon and eggs ice cream?

The celebrity chef's signature dishes are all available at his world-famous restaurant, The Fat Duck, which at one point was voted the world's best eatery.

It was also his first restaurant and while he nurtured The Fat Duck through its early years, and before world fame and fortune beckoned, he lived in this cottage outside the nearby village of Penn before moving to more spacious accommodation in Marlow, Oxfordshire.

His former Penn cottage must on Oak Moss.

The bespectacled chef can afford a larger home now, particularly since he became the face of Waitrose, for whom he created a best-selling 'hidden orange' Christmas pudding that's sold out for several years on the trot now.

Blumenthal currently lives in Barnes in South West London in a large luxury Victorian house which he says is ideal because it's only a 40-minute drive to the Fat Duck but also close to central London.

■ His old Penn cottage is now for sale through agent Knight Frank's Beaconsfield Office (01494 853819) for £525,000.

Mind your manors! It's a movie star

IF YOU think this 14-bedroom historic house looks like the ideal spot for a period drama, then you're not alone.

Harpsden Court featured in the 1996 film Jude by Michael Winterbottom starring Kate Winslet and Christopher Eccleston, well received as a stylish adaption of the Thomas Hardy novel Jude the Obscure.

Its historic looks, this time adorned with cobwebs and candles, also made it the ideal location to shoot the 2012 period ghost story The Woman in Black, starring Daniel Radcliffe. And it featured in the 2014 ITV mini-series The Great Fire starring Broadchurch star Andrew Buchan.

But most recently it was an orphanage in Molly Moon's Incredible Book of Hypnotism, the story of an orphan living in an old house in the fictional village of Briersville. It is based on the hugely popular children's book of the same name by Georgia Byng and was released earlier this month.

So why are so many films shot here? Harpsden Court has been preserved largely as it would have looked during the period times these dramas were set in.

The interior includes a 16th century oak-panelled dining room with a stone fireplace, four wooden staircases, an 18th century Rococo music room and an original 18th century kitchen.

Harpsden Court's history can be traced to much earlier times, too. Parts of the house are in turn medieval, Elizabethan, Gothic revival and Regency.

It's now for sale through agent Savills Henley (01491 843000) and its spokesman Stephen Christie-Miller says the property is on the market for the first time in 40 years.

It's for sale at £8.95m and comes with formal gardens, a boating pond and three cottages.

INTERIORS >with Chris Read

Dreaming of a white Christmas

Well, it's well into December and not even I can ignore the fact that Christmas is arriving pretty damn quickly. There are always a whole raft of trends over this period – and, of course, anything goes. This is the time to throw caution and good taste to the four winds and ham it up as much as you like.

But one trend that has snuck in and taken me by surprise has been the resurgence of a Scandinavian, pared back feel.

It must be the effect of all those Scandi Noir crime series. Not that I would know – I can only watch them from behind the sofa.

So if you're not hoarding the bright red and green baubles you took from your mum's Christmas boxes when you left home and want something just a bit different, this could be the one for you. Get the Scandi Blanc look by concentrating on natural materials, neutral colour, loads of texture, but a minimal approach to decorating the house.

So yes, you need natural materials – or at least they should look natural. We can't all get out into the country [and especially not our neighbour's gardens...] and strip the trees of leaves. Luckily, you don't need oodles – think minimal and simple, not great swags of ivy. A table decoration of a couple of twigs of evergreen in a simple jam jar nails the look. Partner this with white table cloths and crockery for maximum effect.

Neutral colour – white is top of the list, greys and soft browns and beiges second and the occasional hit of dark fir green. Avoid the cans of fake snow and go for simple cut-out stars and snowflakes. The ones shown here

Log cabin meets cool Nordic. And possibly a hint of Highland in there too – but the mix works well because of the neutral colours holding it together. All items available from Dunelm are fantastic value – from £1.29 each and they are from Sue Ryder, so you're helping a great charity at the same time. You can also find some wonderful laser cut ones – Graham and Green is, as ever, a great source.

If all this white feels too cool, then you can flip this style on its head and go for Scandi Noir instead – Farrow and Ball show how wonderful strong dark colours can look. Using white as an accent provides that crispness without sacrificing the minimalist feel.

Now add in lots of texture – I love these bristly tree decorations from the Contemporary Home. Who wouldn't want a tree covered in reindeer, owls and rabbits [there may be a bear in there, too]? And this may be a minimal look but a wonderful pile of mohair throws isn't going to hurt anyone! Though four as shown may be a trifle over the top. Sheepskin and reindeer rugs tick all the boxes here – wonderful warming textures.

If this is feeling a bit too minimalist for you, then Scandi Blanc segues well into the log cabin look.

You can find your inner lumberjack for a song [ahem!] at

Reindeer rugs and light wood make for a picture perfect Scandi Christmas. Furniture from Anton Doll Holz Manufaktur Dunelm. Dunelm has been the naughty secret of northern interior designers looking for great accessories for many a long year.

It now has stores throughout the country and a nifty website, and has gone from strength to strength on its home wares. It has the log cabin look down to a tee and the prices mean that you have plenty left over for the vodkainis, well known as the cocktail of choice for tree surgeons.

And the best thing about this look is that it doesn't take long to achieve – and who doesn't need a bit of extra time at Christmas?

Have a wonderful – and white – Christmas!

Paper stars from Sue Ryder look great hung in a window or from the ceiling – but maybe not over the fireplace...

These gloriously tactile mohair throws from Annabel James add warmth – visually and actually! They come in Gun Metal, Blonde, Natural and, my favourite, Squirrel Grey

Deep luscious Farrow and Ball Hague Blue brings another dimension to this look

FINISHING TOUCHES

Wooden painted Christmas stars, trees, reindeers and gingerbread men in natural wood, also great as present tags. Available in a pretty wooden box with clear lid as a set of 12 from Sue Ryder

This tree decoration would be wonderful adorning a Christmas present. Natural Woodland Christmas Decoration from the Contemporary Home

Funky bristly animals bursting with character and charm to decorate your tree. From the Contemporary Home

Five festive quick fixes

There's still time to smarten up your home before guests arrive for Christmas and New Year - here are some ideas...

1 Hanging a festive wreath on your front door will smarten it up, but only so much. For a quick revamp, fill and sand the (wooden) door, where necessary, and then repaint it using a water-based exterior wood paint if it's cold and drying conditions are poor. Available in lots of lovely colours, Ronseal 10 Year Weatherproof Wood Paint (from £15.63 for 750ml, B&Q) is a good choice because it flexes with the wood, is weatherproof in just an hour and guaranteed for 10 years. It dries even on the cold days we've been having, and any you get on the glass scrapes off easily without tearing the paint on the wood.

2 If you need to repaint rooms before friends and family arrive, Dulux Endurance+ emulsion is great for busy rooms like hallways, landings and open-plan spaces because it's 20 times tougher than standard Dulux emulsion, and washable without fading. Endurance+ comes in a range of colours, including Polished Pebble (£26.48 for 2.5ltr, www.dulux.co.uk), an elegant soft grey.

TATTY BYE: Give dirty grout in bathrooms and kitchens a good clean

3 Is getting the guest room ready top of your DIY list? According to a survey of 2,000 British homes for Travelodge in 2013, those surveyed with blue bedrooms got most sleep, so it could be time to repaint it a soothing shade of blue. If you need a guest mattress and don't have much storage space, Casper mattresses (from £350 for a single, casper.com/uk/en) are ideal because they come in a box, so are easy to store until needed. They simply unfurl from the box, as they're made of different layers of foam, including memory foam, and offer a 100-night free-return trial.

4 Wooden kitchen worktops tend to stain. If cleaning doesn't remove the stains, sand them, clean off the sanding dust with methylated spirits (or white spirit) and apply worktop oil. It's important to protect the worktop before using it again, so only start this job if you have time to apply enough coats of oil - see the manufacturer's instructions for drying and recoating times. Test if you've done enough coats by splashing a few drops of water on the worktop - if they sit on the surface as beads, you have.

WOOD AS NEW: Sand and stain wooden work tops to protect them and give your kitchen a real spruce up

5 In both the kitchen and bathroom, dirty and discoloured tile grout looks tatty. The quickest and easiest way to give discoloured white grout a new lease of life is to scrub it with grout cleaner and then use a grout paint/pen to whiten it. Badly discoloured grout probably won't look like new, but it should look better.

HELLO HO HO: A lick of paint and festive wreath will give visitors a warm festive welcome

By Ian Johnson

The Honda Jazz is a familiar sight on our roads, a favourite model of many more senior drivers who have appreciated its generous interior space, driving position and practicality.

But the latest Jazz takes the game a step further, retaining its undoubted blue rinse magnetism while extending its appeal to a younger market with much more dynamic styling, longer wheelbase and a new chassis using Honda's Global Compact engineering.

The old Jazz was not exactly top of the list in ride and refinement in terms of driving, but these setbacks have been put to right with a new front suspension system which makes a big difference.

The Jazz is a difficult car to categorise. Being essentially a hatchback, it leans towards the mini-MPV school of thought and designers have utilised every bit of interior space. It is amazing that something so roomy is around the size of a Ford Fiesta.

Choice of power units is easy because Jazz only comes with a 1.3-litre petrol engine with the choice of manual or CVT gearbox.

This car, a top of the range 1.3i-VTEC EX Navi CVT was not cheap at £17,885, but boasted a raft of features that make Honda a premium option in smaller cars.

The EX specification brings items such as 16-inch alloy wheels, Smart entry and start, rear view camera, six speakers, automatic air conditioning and all round one-touch power windows, to name but a few.

The Navi model adds GARMIN navigation to make this car a desirable and clever option.

On the road, the 1.3 engine is powerful enough but when coupled with the CVT transmission does have to work a little harder when overtaking.

The CVT system does bring something of an economy bonus as claimed combined mpg figure of 57.6 is better than the 55.4 of the manual and emissions of 114g/km outclass the 120g/km of the manual.

Honda's Magic Seat system offers a range of configurations for carrying cargo and passengers. The Magic Seat bases flip up to allow larger loads to be carried, or can be folded flat for a full load deck.

Of special note are the high quality, soft-touch materials and thoughtful interior design which give a premium ambience to the Jazz.

This is certainly not the car you would buy for sporty motoring but its top speed of 118mph and 0-62mph sprint of 12.3 seconds are just about what you would expect from a modern 1.3 petrol engine car.

Basically, if you require a small car that is big on the inside, the Jazz has few rivals.

YOUR STARS WITH

ARIES MARCH 21 - APRIL 20
This is a really productive and lucky week for you Aries and the majority of you will find that you can get all of your Christmas shopping tied up to your satisfaction. Careful of telling tales on older family members. It will come back to you if you do. There may have been far more to their story than those who first informed you really knew. Ring now for more on this week.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 348 65p per minute

TAURUS APRIL 21 - MAY 21
Try to have faith that your close ones will do all they promised. Many of the signs have been under more pressure than you realise and it would pay to give them the space and time they need to acclimatise. News from far away gives you reason to get really excited about the New Year. 2017 can be all you'd dreamed plus more. Ring now to hear why it will pay to be early everywhere this week.

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21
Please try not to cut corners, but put your time and energy into doing things the right way. Even if this means travelling out of your way, it's sure to be worth the effort my friend. A breakdown in communication in the family requires you to mend a bond. It can be made or break for a reunion of sorts before this year is over. Call me so I can help you admit what you want in love.

CANCER JUNE 22 - JULY 22
You know that better is achievable. Trying harder means distancing yourself from those who only bring you down and add negativity to your life. Conversations you have with family this weekend confirm what you have to do to make life more enjoyable for all. Take time out for younger faces midweek. They need your guidance. Ring now to make the best of life and love this Christmas.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 351 65p per minute

LEO JULY 23 - AUGUST 23
Your ruling planet the Sun makes it possible for you to see opportunity in every setback and you no longer judge others for what they have done, but you realise that life is about learning not about judging. An ex is on your mind, but try to resist the temptation to have someone back that made you feel negative. Ring now so I can help build up that self esteem I know is within.

VIRGO AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 22
Try to make sure that the plans you are making are what you want and not what others think you should be doing. It would be far better for you to draw a line in the sand now or you will only end up getting ripped into all manner of things you don't enjoy. Christmas is coming. Remember what happened last year? Ring now so you can finally be in control of life again.

LIBRA SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23
You have many new admirers who are sure to be making your life a fun place to be in the coming days and weeks. Just be careful that you are not neglecting those you're interested in long term for those who can and will only give short term gratification. Gemini link to a new and improved social life which is beckoning. Ring now to hear how new career paths may take you abroad.

SCORPIO OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21
You start to pay more attention to the way you look and you think more about what you're going to put on in the morning. You realise that to get ahead you are going to have to present yourself in the best possible way. This is an exciting chapter you're entering my friend and the beginning of great things. Ring now to hear how Uranus gives you answers about love in upcoming dreams.

SAGITTARIUS NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 20
We all make mistakes Sagittarius, but you are giving yourself such a hard time about what went wrong that you're your own worst critic. Fresh news on old problems can be found if you keep eyes forward on new contacts and not on the past. Making calls yourself and not being afraid to ask questions can see you getting ahead of the competition. Call now for an early Christmas surprise.

CAPRICORN DECEMBER 21 - JANUARY 20
Try not to leave close ones out of your plans this week. At this time of the year, many of us can feel neglected or out of the loop. Try to think of constructive words you can say which will build them up. It can make all the difference as to how their festive season goes. Family require the truth when talking about recent events, as they already know more than you think Ring now to reveal all.

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19
Your mind is alert and ready to learn what is needed to take your career and personal life up to the next level. Careful of judging a friend's new partner too soon, or you could end up eating your words. Better to let time reveal what they're really like, so you don't end up looking and feeling the fool. Ring now to hear why this is a great time to deal with delicate home issues.

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20
You will be able to see with clarity who needs your time this Christmas and who is ready to spread their wings and go it alone. You get the chance to watch with pride how much a close one has grown in confidence and this is partly down to you and the support you have shown in recent days and weeks. Ring now to hear why a forbidden flirtation is now allowed.

IN BRIEF

Storming run from Magson

ATHLETICS: Four young Harlow AC members represented their counties at the South of England InterCounty Cross Country Championships at Horspath in Oxford.

The HAC juniors received their call ups after catching their county selectors' eyes following strong performances in league cross country matches earlier in the season.

Sophie Magson was representing Essex in the U13 girls' race and had a storming run to finish in 12min 29sec and claim 16th place over the 3km course, it was her county squad debut. It was only Sophie's third ever cross country for HAC.

In the U15 girls' 4km race, Savanna Sirkett had been struggling with a heavy cold in the run up to the event but ran bravely to finish 70th in 17:10 for Essex.

Representing Hertfordshire, Lottie Rowedder ran a strong 19:14 over 5km to finish in 18th place in the U15 girls' race.

And in the U17 men's race, Lewis Harknett survived a mid-race fall and finished in 43rd place for Essex over the 5km course, in 17:07.

Hawks still on hunt for win

BASKETBALL: Harlow Hawks are still without a win in Essex County League Division One after a heavy 74-43 defeat to Southend Saints.

A bright start saw Harlow take an 8-4 lead, but the Saints went on a 14-0 run at the end of the first quarter to give themselves a 20-10 lead.

The Saints were hitting three pointers with ease in the second quarter, whilst the Hawks struggled against some physical defence and they were 43-20 down at half-time.

The third quarter followed a similar pattern as the Hawks struggled to find the basket whilst turnovers continued to cost them at the other end, and they found themselves 24 points behind.

A low scoring final quarter saw coach Shab Niaz ring the changes and despite a couple of early baskets, a comeback never looked likely for the Hawks as they suffered a heavy 74-43 loss.

Rossom races to more glory

RUNNING: Afewerke Rossom produced the performance of the day by winning the men's race, as Harlow Running Club hosted the first round of the East Herts and West Essex Cross Country League.

There was success for both the men's and ladies' teams, with the ladies finishing second and the men third, which combined meant HRC claimed third overall.

The route was a five-mile course in the fields and woods between Newhall and Church Langley.

Rossom was followed home by Rob Lowe in seventh place, Amaniel Tesfay 15th, Owen Haigh 29th and Rich Hynes 30th.

In the ladies' race Sharon Wright finished in sixth place, with Carinne Jay eighth, Julia Gardiner 14th and Catherine Ridge 15th completing the side.

Harlow reach halfway stage top of the table

Narrow victory over East London gives side an edge

London Three North East

Harlow	22
East London	17

HARLOW Rugby Club ended the first half of their London Three North West campaign with a close-fought 22-17 win over East London.

It was their ninth victory in ten games, meaning they top the table and are eight points ahead of second-placed Wanstead.

Harlow were playing up the slope in the first half and opened the scoring with a penalty from Danny Smith.

Shortly after the restart a wayward pass by Harlow was intercepted by the East London centre and they ran in their first try, which was converted.

Brilliant

Michael Weston then produced a brilliant individual run to give the hosts the lead, with Smith converting.

But more sloppy play cost Harlow, and East London took advantage to score again, with the successful conversion meaning Harlow went into the break trailing 14-10.

Throughout the game the Harlow pack had been putting pressure on East London. Mark Twiner was catching cleanly at the line-out and they were frequently able to disrupt the visitors' scrums, and to drive them back in the maul.

Seven minutes into the second half they got their reward. Harlow's forwards drove back the East London pack and quick ball out to the backs saw Ryan McGlone run in Harlow's second try.

Captain Shaun Roberts was then yellow carded for holding back an East London player as they chased down a loose ball and the visitors took a two point lead with the penalty.

East London threw away their man advantage, however, as one of their players was also sin binned, and the Harlow pack's dominance proved vital once again.

With 15 minutes to go they drove East London over the line for a pushover try, Kain Claridge touched the ball down and Smith converted to give them a 22-17 lead.

That was how the game ended, with Harlow's defence working hard in the final minutes to hold onto their lead.

The Rams, Harlow's second XV, top the Shepherd Neame Essex Merit League Division Three with 48 points and have an eight point lead over Thurrock, who they face on Saturday.

The Saints, Harlow's third XV, are flying high as they lead Division Six of the Shepherd Neame Merit League with 43 points.

Chapman hails his Hawks' cup upset

Town knock out National League outfit Eastleigh

By Matt Storey

matt.storey@hertssexnews.co.uk

DANNY CHAPMAN thinks his Harlow Town side might have surprised Eastleigh boss Martin Allen as they beat the Vanarama National League side 2-0 in the FA Trophy first round.

It was the experienced Allen's first game in charge of The Spitfires and, although he put out a youthful side, Chapman admitted Harlow were probably stronger than he expected.

But Allen was gracious in defeat, admitting to the Hawks boss that they fully deserved their victory.

Deserved

Chapman said: "Maybe he was a little surprised by just how strong we were, but he congratulated me after the game and he was very honest, he knew that we thoroughly deserved the victory."

"It was a fantastic day and a fantastic result. We put in a really, really strong performance, a really good performance, and we fully deserved our win."

"It's no secret that they made some changes, they had some young players in their side."

"But for us, it's the old adage that you can only play what is put in front of you. You could see that they were very good technically, but we came out firing right from the start."

"You could tell that we were too strong and too powerful for them."

"In the second half, as they became tired, we had more chances and dominated them."

SUPER MOMENT: Joe Benjamin celebrates scoring Harlow Town's second goal on Saturday

"If it had ended up three, four, five or even six nil, I don't think they could have had any complaints really."

Harlow's reward for the impressive result is a home tie against York City in the second round, which is scheduled to take place on January 14.

The Minstermen were only relegated from the Football League last year, but have struggled since and are currently bottom of the National League table.

Chapman knows home advantage could mean another scalp for his side.

"To get them at home is good because our home form is so good," he added.

"It's been very good for two or three seasons now, but I guess if you look at the form guide in the league, we've probably got the best home record this year."

"So we'll go into the game full of confidence that we can repeat Saturday's performance and beat another team from a higher league."

"It should be another good crowd as well [482 saw Saturday's game], you'd expect a similar gate, if not more, because they are a Football League team really."

The Hawks were brought back down to earth with a 2-1 defeat at Needham Market on Tuesday night, their first loss in the Ryman Premier for almost two months. Alex Read got Hawks' goal. The result means they are now 11th in the table.

Benjamin and Read inspire shock victory

FA Trophy, first round

Harlow Town 2
Eastleigh 0

HARLOW TOWN produced a dominant display to comfortably see off Vanarama National League side Eastleigh 2-0, and progress through to the second round of the FA Trophy for the first time since 2003.

First half goals from Alex Read and Joe Benjamin put the Hawks in a commanding position, with Eastleigh unable to create any significant efforts at goal.

The hosts came flying out of the blocks – Read fired a warning shot across goal from a tight angle, before an inch-perfect tackle from James Granger prevented him from getting another shot away from close range.

Spitfires keeper Scott Brown was next to deny the striker, his save from Read's snapshot bounced off the floor, onto the bar and out of danger.

The Hawks took the lead after 22 minutes when captain Craig Pope cut the ball back from the by-line and Read hooked it home to the delight of the bumper home crowd.

The lead was doubled 12 minutes later as another cross from Pope reached Benjamin at the back post, who lashed the ball home with a powerful shot.

Unplayable

Brown produced a brilliant save to deny Benjamin a second goal two minutes later. The winger, who was unplayable at times, breezed past two Eastleigh defenders before curling a right-footed shot towards the top corner but Brown pushed it away.

The stopper denied Mario Noto and Syrus Gordon before the break, and the second period continued in much the same vein.

Eastleigh were struggling to make any impact going forward and in a rare attack, Owen Fee tried his luck from distance, but David Hughes collected comfortably.

Tony Lee then blocked efforts from Read and Jared Small, while Ibrahima Sonko's looping header from a corner grazed the crossbar.

The visitors' best chance to score came when Dillon Kirkwood broke beyond the Harlow defence, but Hughes was quick out of his area to clear the danger.

Fabian Simms was instrumental in the Harlow midfield and his low long range shot clipped the upright. Small also tried his luck from distance, but again, couldn't find the target.

Harlow saw out the rest of the game to complete an impressive and well-deserved victory over their opponents from two leagues higher.
